NAIT Newest CEMA Member

Fort McMurray, Alberta – The Cumulative Environmental Management Association (CEMA) welcomes NAIT (Northern Alberta Institute of Technology) as its newest member. Their membership was approved at CEMA's recent Board meeting. NAIT will sit as a member of CEMA Non-Government Organization caucus.

"NAIT is very pleased to be welcomed into CEMA. We look forward to a strong and fruitful relationship working together in the years ahead," said Dr. Bill Dushenko, Dean of NAIT's School of Sustainable Building and Environmental Management. "This new relationship between our two institutions can only help both of our future research."

"We are extremely happy about NAIT joining CEMA, they are a world class institution" commented Glen Semenchuk, CEMA Executive Director. "CEMA has been increasing its membership over the past years to include educational institutions in the province, and we're very pleased to have NAIT as the newest member."

NAIT is one of the preeminent institutes of technology in Canada, with almost 80,000 registrations worldwide in business, advanced technologies and skilled trades. Known for real-world education and student success, NAIT also engages with business and industry in applied research and innovation and provides corporate training around the world.

CEMA is a multi-stakeholder society that is a key advisor to the provincial and federal governments committed to respectful, inclusive dialogue to make recommendations to manage the cumulative environmental effects of regional development on air, land, water and biodiversity.
